Event and Meeting Description

Tuesday, May 29

1. Introductory meeting and presentations in hotel conference room

R Street's Dr. Carrie Wade gave introductory presentations on the nature of addiction and basic principles of harm reduction, and the group talked about housekeeping matters and the week's activities.

2. Meeting with NHS England Addictions Clinical Academic Group, Lambeth Drug and Alcohol Treatment Consortium, Lorraine Hewitt House

The delegation met with several practitioners and clinical experts at a drug and alcohol treatment service in Brixton (Dr. Emily Finch, Clinical Director of Addictions Clinical Academic Group; Dr. Michael Kelleher, Addictions Specialist and Clinical Lead for Lambeth Addictions; and Dr. Luke Mitcheson, Head of Psychology for Addictions Clinical Academic Group.). The practitioners gave presentations on the nature of Britain's drug problem and the role of harm reduction in treatment. They also discussed the Lambeth injectable heroin clinical trial and best clinical practices in addiction. The delegation toured the onsite harm reduction clinic.

3. Dinner at the Grenadier

The delegation ate dinner at a British pub and had time to network with one another and discuss the day's educational material.

Wednesday, May 30

1. Meetings with Harm Reduction International

The delegation heard from several experts at Harm Reduction International, the leading non-governmental organization working to promote harm reduction. Head of advocacy for HRI Fionnuala Murphy gave a presentation on the "10 by 20" campaign, an initiative to have governments redirect 10% of the resources currently spent on ineffective punitive responses to drugs and invest it in harm reduction by 2020. The delegation also discussed the promise and potential limitations of harm reduction in a global context.

2. Meetings with DrugScience

The delegation met with David Nutt, founder of DrugScience and several of his colleagues. DrugScience is an independent, science-led nonprofit on drugs research, which brings together leading drugs experts to carry out original research into drug harms and effects. Discussions focused on scientific analysis surrounding relative risks of various drugs, appropriate regulation of drugs, drug testing and the need for more scientific research on drugs.

3. Reception at the House of Lords

The delegation attended a reception which featured informal presentations from Steve Rolles, Founder of Transform Drug Policy Foundation; Carrie Wade, R Street; and David Badcock, CEO DrugScience. Presenters discussed their organization's priorities and activities in the harm reduction space.

Thursday, May 31

1. Meeting with Peter Hajek, Wolfson Institute of Preventive Medicine
Peter Hajek is Director of Tobacco Dependence Research Unit at the Wolfson Institute of Preventive Medicine. His presentation focused on the science surrounding the relative risk of various nicotine products.
2. Meeting with Sarah Jakes and Gerry Stimson, New Nicotine Alliance UK
New Nicotine Alliance is a UK-based non-profit group that promotes and supports tobacco harm reduction. Presentations focused on the history of e-cigarettes and tobacco harm reduction as well as the consumer perspective for tobacco harm reduction and role of flavors.
3. Meeting with Christopher Russell, Centre for Substance Use Research
CSUR is a research agency studying substance use and abuse using qualitative and quantitative methods. Dr. Russell discussed research on e-cigarette use patterns in both the UK and US.

Friday, June 1

1. Meetings with City of London officials at Guildhall
The delegation met with several civil servants who focused primarily on the criminal justice angle of harm reduction. They heard from Commander Simon Bray who handles drug issues for the Metropolitan Police Service; Adam Winstock, who runs the Global Drug Survey and provides drug treatment to prison populations), and David Mackintosh, the Director and Policy Adviser for the London Drug and Alcohol Policy Forum. The meetings were followed by a reception in Guildhall.

Dear Ansley,

I'm a federal affairs manager at the R Street Institute, a DC-based think tank. We're planning an educational visit for a select group of bipartisan Congressional staffers to go the United Kingdom to learn about harm reduction strategies in public health, and we would like to cordially invite you to be part of our delegation.

The trip will take place in London from Tuesday, May 29 through Saturday, June 2, 2018. The goal is to educate U.S. policymakers on harm-reduction philosophy and programs as a strategy to reduce the negative consequences associated with risk behaviors and addiction, with a special emphasis on opioids and tobacco use. As such, we will be meeting with British public health providers, clinical experts and civil servants to discuss the UK's unique regulatory approach. The memo attached gives detailed information on the goals of the trip, including the full itinerary.

Please let us know as soon as possible if you're interested, and we'll send you the forms to get you started on next steps with Ethics. Forms are due no later than next Friday April 27, but we appreciate you telling us as soon as possible if you'd like to attend to help with planning purposes.

If you have any questions, do not hesitate to reach out via email or by phone at 919-830-3140. We'd also be happy to come by your office if you'd like to discuss the trip in person.

We hope you will be able to join us and look forward to hearing from you soon.

Best regards,
Caroline

Pre-Travel Filing Instructions: Complete and submit this form at least 30 days prior to the travel departure date to the Select Committee on Ethics in SH-220. Incomplete and late travel submissions will not be considered or approved. This form must be typed and is available as a fillable PDF on the Committee's website at ethics.senate.gov. Retain a copy of your entire pre-travel submission for your required post-travel disclosure.

Funding and Disclosures

Funding for this trip will be in accordance with House Ethics Rules, which provide that costs must be paid out of general funds and that no resources are either formally or informally earmarked by donors. The R Street Institute's general, unrestricted operating funds are provided as a percentage of all donations. We are not coordinating with our donors, including those who may be interested in harm reduction, on this project.

The agenda (invitees, speakers, nature of the trip) for this trip will be approved by the House Ethics Committee no later than 30 days before the trip takes place.

R Street's Current Work

In the area of harm reduction, we carry out four basic types of activities:

Research. We produce original papers and peer-reviewed research on a variety of topics related to harm reduction. In the past year, we have moved forward an overall agenda for harm reduction in public policy in the United States. We have published on Food and Drug Administration regulation of e-cigarettes, the harm-reduction potential of Heat-not-Burn products, and the proposal to restrict sales of cigarettes to those of low nicotine. We have also published several editorials on opioid harm reduction. In April, with the Center for Pain Research at the University of Minnesota, we will publish a piece on considerations of harm reduction in chronic-pain patients.

Federal and State Affairs. Our federal and state affairs teams are heavily engaged in harm-reduction issues, meeting with policymakers in Washington, D.C. and engaging in state and local battles wherever and whenever necessary.

Coalition Building. We find we are most effective when we work with others. For this reason, we have brought together a broad coalition of groups from across the ideological spectrum. We strive to bring together outreach groups, including tobacco harm-reduction advocates, PreP advocates and individuals promoting harm reduction approaches to opioid use.

Writing. We write frequently in the mainstream media on harm reduction-related topics. R Street affiliated op-eds have run in The Washington Examiner, The San Francisco Chronicle, and The Hill.

Carrie Wade has previously worked as an addiction researcher at the University of Minnesota and The Scripps Research Institute in La Jolla, California. Her research has focused largely on the intersection of prescription opioid abuse and chronic pain in animal models of opioid self-administration.

Carrie's scientific background in the biological mechanisms of opioid addiction led to her interest in how public-health initiatives can prevent the incidence of addiction and reduce the negative societal and personal consequences that result from drug addiction. Her internship with the Baltimore Student Harm Reduction Coalition Overdose Education and Naloxone Distribution program solidified her goal to promote rational and efficient drug policies. Since joining the R Street Institute, Carrie has participated in numerous harm-reduction conferences, including the National Harm Reduction Conference, the U.S. E-Cigarette Summit, the Global Forum on Nicotine, the Global Tobacco and Nicotine Forum, Harm Reduction International, the U.S. Conference on AIDS, the Society for Neuroscience, the American Pain Society, and the Winter Conference on Brain Research.

Education: Bachelor's in Neuroscience, University of Minnesota; Master's in Public Health, Johns Hopkins University; PhD in Pharmacology, University of Minnesota.
